

Repairs have to happen.

I-105 will be under construction January-June, 2005.

Sitting in traffic doesn't.

Plan ahead. No one likes hearing someone say, "Hind sight is 20/20" or "I told you so." Consider an alternative. Don't get stuck. Liberate yourself. Seek the open road, get some exercise or let someone else do the driving.

ODOT construction crews are going to be resurfacing I-105. This will close lanes and cause detours and slowdowns on the highway and any connecting roads. Over 30,000 vehicles travel I-105 between I-5 and the Washington/Jefferson Street Bridge every day. Commuter Solutions aims to get less traffic on the highway and keep it flowing as quickly as possible.

Here are some tips:

- * Instead of driving alone, carpool
– Commuter Solutions offers Carpool Matching
- * Take the bus
- * Take a different route or travel at non-peak hours
- * If it's a nice day, walk or ride your bike

Whatever you do, a new way might be just what you need to shake things up. To get a new perspective. So set a different course, take an unexpected turn and deviate from the norm. Who knows, maybe you'll find yourself along the way. Or maybe you'll just find a way of avoiding traffic jams and construction on I-105.
